Subject: Zerol Ice

Dear Mr. Zaplitny,

Thank you for working with Miles Carney with regard to using Zerol Ice in the air conditioning equipment at a Ford dealership in Michigan. We appreciate the consideration you are giving to using our product, and we wish to address your "what if" question on problems after installation.

Shrieve Products Company, the refiner of refrigeration oils and manufacturer of Zerol Ice, does indeed stand behind their product. If a problem occurs after installation that can be attributed by acceptable testing to the Zerol Ice, they will work with all parties toward a mutually acceptable resolution. Hopefully this . . . along with the fact that Zerol Ice is currently running trouble-free in thousands of a/c systems . . . will relieve any concerns you may have.

At the same time, please understand that their position is not an unqualified guarantee on equipment warranty. Many other things can unexpectedly affect air conditioning equipment, and neither they nor Zerol Ice can be held accountable in such cases. The key here is that it is simply a lubricant with exceptional qualities in improving the lubricity of existing refrigeration compressor oils, resulting in quieter system operation, reduced energy use and extended equipment service life. And as stated above, it is already running trouble-free in many, many systems.

Please feel free to call my office if you have any questions.

Sincerely,

John Lawler
